

INVITATION TIL SEMINAR

On being exposed: phenomenology of self-experienced vulnerability in schizophrenia v/ Andrea Raballo, MD

Onsdag den 4. maj 2011 Kl. 13.00 – 15.00
Nannasgade 28
Psykoterapeutisk Ambulatorium
2200 København N

The experiential side of the vulnerability to schizophrenia entails profound transformations of subjectivity. Among those, basic disorders of self-awareness (self-disorders) constitute a salient phenomenological anchor for the identification of schizophrenia spectrum phenotypes and an important – although still relatively underexplored - domain for therapeutic intervention.

The presentation will touch upon the empirical background of current research in the field, the clinical phenomenology of self-disorders and their structural link with major diagnostic symptoms in schizophrenia spectrum disorders. Anthropological infrastructures of vulnerability (such as perplexity, alienation from common sense, sense of exposedness and overwhelming permeability) will be discussed in view of their implications for the clinical encounter.

Andrea Raballo is psychiatric consultant at the Department of Mental Health of Reggio Emilia (Italy) and Research Fellow at the Center for Subjectivity Research and at the Mental Health Center Hvidovre, University of Copenhagen (Denmark). He is Secretary of the section for Clinical Psychopathology of the World Psychiatric Association (WPA) and managing editor of Philosophy, Ethics and Humanities in Medicine (PEHM).
